Q.1) Read the following passage and the questions below:

10

Change is the law of life, spring changes into summer and summer into winter and we come back to spring again. Thus the cycle of seasons move on. Childhood changes into youth and youth into old age which finally declines into death. It is the law of nature that the old order should change and give place to new one. "No change" is the sign of death and extinction.

But in spite of this clear lesson from the pages of nature these are people who always insist on conserving the old. What is old is right for them. 'They would cling to custom, fashions and beliefs as if those were holy. The reason for this was that they held that if they did not do so they would be punished by God. It is these people who have stoned the prophets and thus resisted the Will of God. One fails to understand how these people did not understand that one good custom in the long run is bound to make the world miserable. Where there is a great scope for change, prosperity and happiness are bound to exist.

1. What message does this passage give to us?
2. What do people fail to understand?
3. What do people cling to and why?
4. How does the author show that the change is the law of life?
5. What lesson do we get from the passage of pages of nature?
6. What is the law of nature?
7. Why should we accept the change?

Q.1 Read the passage and answer the following questions.

(5 Marks)

I am one of those people who love the desert. It brings peace to my mind after the daily battle for one's bread. When tired of fighting, the green countryside never lets me forget my worries; Everywhere I see flowers, trees, birds and insects struggling before my eyes, each striving to win even if his own life is the death of another.

In the desert, however, the sun is the master; All others retire before his merciless rays. Only where there is water the desert world gives a rich home to trees and flowers; But in a desert, one must go a long way to find water, otherwise it would not be a desert, so those who love the peace of a treeless and grassless place stand on the top of a rocky mountain and see nothing around them. Sunlit desert. There is no sign of effort or emotion to disturb them. Then strengthens the soul, without rest and in a calm mind. They may return to the struggle for existence in the cities.

1. What does the author love about the desert?
2. How does the green countryside make the author feel?
3. Who is the master in the desert?
4. What does the desert world give a rich home to?
5. How does the desert strengthen the soul?
